

STEVE ESTABROOK

Steve Estabrook is a graduate student in the history/humanities program at CSUS with an emphasis on Cold-War era culture in the United States and Western Europe. He received his Bachelors and Masters in Music at CSU Sacramento as well. He has directed and performed with the Village Opera Theater and other local theater groups and currently plays with the band Myler and Starr. After graduation Steve hopes to continue writing and do some teaching as well.

KEVIN GLEASON

Kevin Gleason is a graduate student in the History program at California State University, Sacramento. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from California State University, Sacramento in History. His current area of interest is ritual and power relationships in ancient literature. After receiving his Master of Arts, he plans to pursue a doctorate degree in Ancient History and hopes to teach at the university level.

LORRAINE DIAS HERBON

Lorraine Dias Herbon is a graduate student in the History program at California State University, Sacramento. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree in History also from Sacramento State. Her current area of interest is the history of California, specifically Sacramento, during the Progressive Era. The mother of two, Lorraine would like to pursue a doctorate degree in history and work toward expanding the interest of Sacramentans in their rich and colorful history.

CHRISTOPHER HOGANSON

Christopher Hoganson is a graduate student in History at California State University, Sacramento. He received his Bachelor of Arts in the Humanities and Religious Studies from Sac State. Christopher's area of interest is the religions of Antiquity with an emphasis on the transition from Paganism to Christianity. The eternal student, he worries he might not earn his Master's degree before the impending Mayan Apocalypse.

JESSICA JAMI

Jessica Jami received her Bachelor's in History in 2007 from Sacramento State University. She truly enjoys learning about United States and International history and how major events of the twentieth century have impacted social and cultural norms. Currently, Jessica works as a manager, while also raising her two beautiful children. She hopes to one day attend a Ph. D. program.

JENN KISTLER

Jenn Kistler is a graduate student in the History program at California State University, Sacramento. Her primary area of interest is the history of science during the Middle Ages. She received her bachelor's degree in Journalism and Mass Communications from New Mexico State University and worked as a journalist at various newspapers for several years before embracing the call of the history profession. She plans to teach at the community college level and eventually pursue a doctorate degree.

ANNIE SNIDER

Annie Snider is a graduate student in the Master of Arts in History program at California State University, Sacramento. She received her Bachelor of Arts in History from California State University, Sacramento. Annie's areas of interest are nationalism and culture in the fin de siècle Habsburg Empire and ethnic conflict in the former Yugoslavia. She plans to earn a Ph.D in Eastern Central European History.

SCOTT SPITZER

Scott Spitzer is a graduate student in the History/Humanities program at the California State University, Sacramento. He received his bachelor's degree in Communications at UC San Diego and after a long, circuitous journey, he is currently studying political orthodoxy in early Christianity. He is scheduled to graduate in December 2011, and is in the process of applying to doctorate programs with the goal of teaching at the university level.